

A more structured form of physical activity that has specific goals in mind which work on the components of physical fitness.

